46th Annual Key Club International Convention held in Orlando, Florida

By Michelle C. Roberts

Orlando, Florida is the home of Walt Disney World, Epcot Center, Sea World, and from July 1–5, it was the home of the 46th Annual Key Club International Convention.

Key Club is a community service high school organization sponsored by the Kiwanis Clubs. Several East County high schools were represented at the convention. Tami Foster represented El Cajon Valley High School, Susy McManus was chosen from Grossmont High School, Lisa Trent represented Helix High School and Trina Krider and Michelle Roberts were chosen to represent Monte Vista High School. Pete Horton, Spring Valley Kiwanis Club, acted as the girls' advisor.

Each girl had a great time and met fellow Key Clubbers from around the world. The girls' time was filled all week with general meetings, keynote speakers, educational forums, election caucuses, and of course, a trip to Walt Disney World.

The convention was kicked off with a fundraising dance to benefit the Give Kids the World Foundation. The foundation is affiliated with the Make A Wish foundation. Tami, Susy, Trina and Michelle visited the Give Kids the World Village and met some of the beneficiaries of the $20,000 donation made by Key Club International.

Obviously, the convention was a great experience for all who attended. New friendships were formed and ideas for successful clubs were shared. Trina said it best when she said, "This convention has peaked my enthusiasm for this upcoming Key Club year."

Middleton honored by Supervisors

Susan Golding, Chairperson of the San Diego County Board of Supervisors, presents an award to Tex Middleton, outstanding volunteer. Middleton, a Lemon Grove resident, received the Area Agency on Aging's Volunteer Award for his commitment to senior programs. San Diego County Photo

When Tex Middleton retired from McClellan Buick in 1973, he started a new career: active volunteer. The Lemon Grove resident was honored by the County Board of Supervisors as Volunteer of the Month in recognition of his many years' service to the Area Agency on Aging (AAA) and to numerous East County agencies.

Middleton, 75, received AAA's Volunteer Award for his commitment to senior programs.

He is a member of the agency's Advisory Council and is chairman of the council's Standing Nutrition Subcommittee which links all 28 senior nutrition sites in the County.

In addition, he is a member of Grossmont Hospital's Senior Advisory Group Enterprise and of the hospital's Home Health Professional Advisory Committee. He was recently elected to the California Senior Legislature and he served as Honorary Grand Marshall for Lemon Grove's 1989 Old Time Days Parade.

Retiring teachers honored

The Lemon Grove Teachers' Association held its annual retirement dinner at the Bonita Golf Club on June 9, 1989.

Nine teachers were honored for having taught a total of 258 years in the Lemon Grove School District. Those teachers retiring were Barbara Brockhouse, Orla Brown, Carol Green, Fabian Lantz, Helen Oberdin, Louis Robinson, Carol Sebastian, John Smits and Jo Wittrock.

The teachers were presented with a Certificate of Recognition on behalf of the Lemon Grove School Board, by Dr. James Justeson, Superintendent of Schools.

Donna Masters, Lemon Grove Teachers Association President, presented each retiree with an engraved silver bowl.

Many former teachers and administrators were among the 150 guests attending the dinner.

Power qualifies for Nationals

We've followed the Spring Valley Crunchers girls softball team throughout the past few weeks as they battle to qualify for the Nationals, which will be held in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, August 9–13, 1989. However, Power Softball of San Diego, another mostly East County team, qualified by winning first place in the Southern California Tournament held in Escondido, July 7–9.

The team is composed of: Rebecca Aase, Santana; Andrea Bravo, El Capitan/Louisiana Tech; Tonya Chamberlain, Mount Miguel; Stephanie Chapel, University City/SDSU; Melissa Hadfield, El Cajon Valley; Shelley Hawkins, Santana; Christie Stippey, Santana; Shannon Frankenberger, Monte Vista, SDSU; Kelly Howard, Monte Vista; Jennifer Olow, Mount Miguel; Patti Pierson, Fallbrook/Cal State Northridge; Terry Pierson, Fallbrook/Cal State Northridge; and Tori Speakerman, Fallbrook/Palomar College (CIF Player of the Year–1988).

The squad is coached by Phil Hampton and Kurt Howard with Bill Corbitt as pitching coach.

Although the team is holding the usual fundraising events, they are asking for community support to help send them to Sioux Falls. Send contributions to Power Softball, 12622 Willow Road, Lakeside, CA 92040.

Dr. Robert Sanet named Optometrist of the Year

The San Diego County Optometric Association recently named Dr. Robert B. Sanet Outstanding Optometrist of the Year. The award was presented in recognition of Sanet's professional contributions, especially in the area of vision therapy.

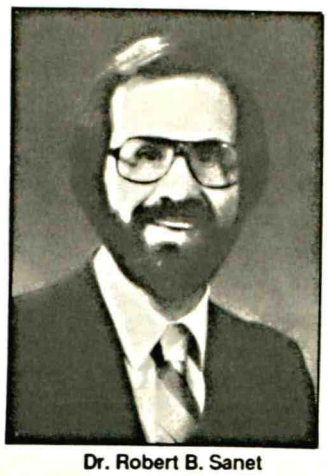
"Being recognized by one's peers is the highest form of compliment," said Sanet when accepting the award. "I've always felt that it's crucial to volunteer and serve in the community as a health care professional."

Sanet, a native of New York, joined Dr. Amorita Treganza's Lemon Grove optometric practice in 1975. Their office is one of the oldest continuous practices in the U.S. dating back to 1887.

Sanet specializes in the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of vision problems. He has pioneered treatment techniques used in vision therapy, helping thousands of San Diegans tackle learning related vision problems and strabismus (crossed eye and lazy eye). Sanet lectures continually throughout the United States on the benefits of vision therapy. He also carries his message internationally, lecturing in Africa, Australia and Canada. In September, he is scheduled to lecture in Brussels and Milan.

Locally, Sanet has served on the boards of the San Diego Chapter of The Association of Children with Learning Disabilities, San Diego Parents Magazine and the Visually Impaired Infants program.

On a national level, Sanet has served on the American Optometric Association Long Range Planning Committee, American Optometric Foundation, and from 1985-87 was President of the College of Optometrists in Vision Development. He is also an adjunct professor providing internships for students attending the Pennsylvania, Pacific University, and University of Missouri Colleges of Optometry. In 1984 Sanet was vision therapy consultant and trainer for the US Mens' Olympic Volleyball team.



Dr. Robert B. Sanet

His award as San Diego County Optometrist of the Year adds to the many honors Sanet has received in the past. Among them include the Mayors Award for the City of Los Angeles, California Young Optometrist of the Year, and the Ralph Barstow International Award for Excellence in Professional Optometric Practice.

Sanet plans to continue his work in vision development. He strives to educate San Diegans on how vision therapy effectively deals with vision and perceptual problems.

Crunchers need tourney victory

Ventura champion receives berth at Nationals in Sioux Falls

The Spring Valley Crunchers girls fastpitch softball team travels to Ventura for an attempt at a berth for the National ASA 19 - Under tournament in Sioux Falls, South Dakota. The first game is scheduled for 4 p.m. on Friday, July 21. It is a double elimination affair with 18 teams participating. A win of this tourney will send the Crunchers on a return trip to the Nationals in mid-August.

As a warm up the team played the champion San Diego Astros at Mesa Del Sol on Wednesday evening and lost by a narrow margin of 1-0. The Astros scored their only run off starting pitcher Alison Brickner, who gave up three successive hits in the top of the first. That was all of the hits and scoring, but that is all it took, as the Crunchers could not find their bats. Lisa Perettie pitched superbly and gave up no hits in her three innings of play. Amy Dawson, Michele Gomez and Alison Brickner had the only Cruncher hits.

The team is well armed with girls who have worked with the dean of softball pitchers, Don Sarno, of Brea. The pitchers throw a variety of pitches- the rise, the drop, the curve, a changeup, fastball and off-speed. They worked out with Sarno last Monday in preparation for the all important trip to Ventura. You can bet that the coaches, Ralph Mora, John Brickner, Roma Dawson and Sheri Riley will do their best to help the Crunchers find their bats in time for Ventura.

Anyone wishing to donate to the Cruncher cause may do so by calling Grace Brickner at 697-1096 for information.

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

Last week, we reported an interesting speech given by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos who offered a thoughtful discussion on "Let's Buy Back Our Assembly."

In it, he told how the legislature was being taken over by big spenders who demand beneficial treatment from our lawmakers.

At the same time, there was a separate movement to do the very thing that Assemblyman Vasconcellos was urging.

The parallel group, Californians for Honest Elections, offers a dandy solution for taking the legislature away from the politicians and their financial supporters and returning it to the electorate, as it was meant to be.

Californians for Honest Elections plan to do it by killing the gerrymander. It will not cost taxpayers dollars nor will it require more people feeding at the public trough. It will only straighten out district lines to fit political districts rather than gerrymandering to bring in pockets of supporters of the lawmakers already in office.

The Californians for Honest Elections will appear on the 1990 ballot as a constitutional reapportionment reform initiative which would destroy legislators' power to hold and abuse the redistricting process which allows individual legislators to keep safe seats so as to be protected form electoral defeat.

Democratic State Assemblyman Alister McAlister, spokesman for the honest elections group has filed the initiative with the State Attorney General. Rather than leaving redistricting in the hands of a powerful elite in the legislature, the reform establishes mandatory constitutional standards on how district lines may be drawn along with strict timelines.

"It basically takes existing constitutional provisions about redistricting which are vague, and hammers them into quantifiable standards so that redistricting plans can be easily compared to minimum constitutional stands, and so that the redistricting process is more accountable," according to Bruce Lee, executive director for the Californians for Honest Elections.

Says McAlister, "Our [present] system is so in-grown and static that voluntary reform by the political establishment is virtually impossible. Our status quo system has not solved our state's most serious problems. What major public problem has been solved in the past 5–6 years?

"In the last 3 elections since the Legislature's gerrymander of 1982 to protect their incumbency, only 6 of the challengers in 435 races for legislative or congressional offices have won, a rate of slightly over 1%.

"After spending $210 million for congressional races in the same period of time, only one challenger has won," according to Director Lee.

The plan allows the legislature to draw a redistricting plan using strong criteria, but if the legislature draws a gerrymander instead, then the public may challenge the plan in the California Supreme Court and present alternate plans which maximize the criteria. In that case the Supreme Court, which is also held accountable to the constitutional standards, will identify the plan which maximizes the criteria in priority order, and the plan which comes closes to maximizing the constitutional standards is automatically adopted, it was said.

According to Dr. Alan Heslop of the Rose Institute of Governmental Affairs, "The criteria in the initiative will certainly constrain the reach for partisan advantage and also crimp the development of a bipartisan gerrymander."

Californians for Honest Elections has budgeted $1.2 million to place the measure on the ballot and will gather over 636,000 signatures for qualification.

The group notes, "Under these fair standards, hard-working legislators will still get re-elected. They may, however, have to vote a little more the way their districts want them to."

And that is not a bad idea.

Rational thinking urged on pipeline

As a 34-year resident and businessman in Lemon Grove, and a Councilman for the twelve years since incorporation, I deplore any disruption and inconvenience in our town. My first wish is that we get off scot-free by having the pipeline NOT come through our city at all. To receive the benefits without any of the hardships would be nice indeed.

The hard facts are that we who enjoy the Southern California life must also accept the fact that we MUST import almost all of our water. The need for this aqueduct is real, and the benefits are vital to the existing residents as well as to future development which is certain to occur. The cost will be shared by all of us and some neighborhoods will be more impacted physically than others. It is unfair but life is not fair with equal sadness and joy for ever individual of a family, or of the world. The "Not in My Back Yard," or the use of such a project as a political football for personal gain is legal, but is not an honorable thing to do.

The criteria for making a choice of the routes suggested, are clearly COST, ENGINEERING and COMMUNITY DISRUPTION. These factors are weighed over the entire length of the project to determine where the best path will be. All through routes go through La Mesa and their impacts are least on the western choice. This route is also estimated to be $50 million less than the middle or eastern routes in cost. The disruption is about equal in all three, according to the consultants. The preliminary feeling is that the western route will be chosen and we in Lemon Grove will have to take some lumps for the good of others.

The SDCWA, who will make the decision as well as build the pipeline, has stated that impacts will be mitigated; that disruption will be as minimal as possible; and that the people of our town who are impacted will be treated fairly and compensated properly. They refer to their record of past projects of this nature, and pledge to do right by everyone affected by the construction.

IF, repeat IF, the decision of SDCWA is to cut the pipeline through Lemon Grove, and disrupt the lives of some of my dearest friends, then I would demand that they damn well do everything humanly possible to make the hurts as slight as possible. They must take responsibility for the following: To assure that access to medical service be guaranteed to Col. and Mrs. Stienhoff and everyone else along the route during ALL times of construction; that fire equipment and all emergency vehicles be able to reach the Faucher family, the Buttrons and everyone else if needed; if Heather Kunkel must park her car a block away to get to work, there must be a safe place for it; if Annie Weest needs to go to Mass, she will be able to; if someone wants one of Mark O'Rourkes hamburgers, they will not be blocked out; and that my neighbors, the Rieneckes will be able to attend services at the Skyline Church.

The blasting, the noise and dust, mud, the re-routing of traffic, the blocking off of properties, the storing of piles of dirt in front yards, the parking easements and security, the restoration of properties and streets, and the full disclosure of these impacts before, during and after construction is the FULL responsibility of the water authority. Lemon Grove people are willing to bear their share of the burden, but they expect to be treated fairly. The City Council demands no less, and will all be watchdogging the project as it progresses.

At the July 13 public hearing, I challenged the board to make a commitment for the public record; to do the ultimate in mitigating ALL negative impacts for whomever is affected over the entire actual route. We can and must hold them to this.

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

When I was dragged-up (raised) back in the roaring twenties, the terms babysitter, pre-school, day care and latch key kids had not been coined yet.

Whenever my dad would go anywhere, I would go along. It was during the prohibition days and my father was in the illegal bootlegging business. He and I would deliver the booze to a bootlegger's salon called a "blind pig." It was a drinking and gambling dive usually above or behind a legitimate business such as a coffee shop, butcher shop, grocery store, or etc.

Dad would ring the buzzer until the bouncer would look through a peephole in the door and if he knew him, he allowed to enter; a gallon of hootch under one arm and me under the other.

My father would get paid the money for the "giggle water" and then he would stay on to drink and gamble until the wee hours of the morning, usually until he was drunk or broke, or both.

"Daddy, can we go home now?"

"Don't bother me now, I'm on a roll. Go sleep until I'm ready to go."

I would usually end up sleeping in the corner or on an empty pool table until he was off his roll, winning or losing.

After my very unusual childhood, I was determined to raise my three lovely daughters in a more Christian atmosphere. In those depression days, before WWII, we could not afford to go out much, but if we did, the girls would go along or stay with one of their grandmothers, who would return them spoiled rotten. Our daughters have since grown to be fine ladies now having families of their own.

Nowadays, with most mothers working to make ends meet, good child day care is getting hard to find. Preschool and child day care centers have had such bad publicity lately with all the child molesting and pornographic incidents. With all the "sickies" out in the world, a mother has to be very careful where she leaves her loved ones.

Although my childhood was kinda crazy, at least my dad never farmed me out to someone else. I really don't believe I turned out any better or worse than the modern day kids with all the drugs, alcohol, teenage suicides and the sex revolution that is presently rotting our society.

Sports Commentary

By John E. Wirges

San Diego is widely known as a hot bed of American golf and current events give us a dateline of interest around the world.

The Trans-Mississippi match play Amateur championship, one of the oldest and most prestigious tournaments in the game, was decided at La Jolla Country Club last Sunday. And that was just the start of international attention tournament play swinging away off San Diego tees.

Optimist Junior World Championship awards will be presented today to the finish of play to the boys and girls in the 10-under division at Presido Hills, the 11-12 age bracket winners at Singing Hills and the 13-14 section champions at Balboa Park.

The battle in the 15-17 division is not likely to be decided until the final putt is stroked late tomorrow at Torrey Pines. Some 750 players from 33 countries and 35 states started play.

To give the adventure its proper setting, contenders in the girls 15-17 bracket include 1987 winner Brandie Burton of Rialto, France's Sandrine Mendiburu — who won the Orange Bowl Jr. title last January, Argentina's Maria Olivero, 1989 Southern California PGA junior champ Leta Lindley of Carlsbad and El Cajon's Kristyl Sunderman. Only space limits the list of other worthy contenders.

The girls tackle the 6,272 yard, par 74 north course at Torrey Pines where there is no fee for spectators or parking. The 15-17 boys take the south Torrey course test, a massive 6,727 yard, par 72 challenge.

Kevin Kemp, of Greensboro, N.C., is the senior boys defending champion and he has some serious swinging in store if he is to become the only second successful 15-17 boys title defender in the 22-year history of Junior World Competition.

Carito Villaroman of the Philippines took the '85 and '86 titles, setting the tournament record with a 15 under par, 273 in winning the 1986 championship. Remember, it's a PGA Tour Course.

Spring Valley's Sharon Barrett is the only girls 15-17 double winner, taking back to back titles in '78 and '79. Her 1978 5-under-par, 291 remains the tourney record for the girls.

Kemp is facing such worldwide challengers as South Korea's Hy-Shick Min, Guam's Daniel Wen, Kazuyoshi Yonekura of Japan and Carlos Lonardi of Argentina.

His toughest competition, however, could come from Chris Riley, San Diego Boy's Golf of the Year in 1988 and recently crowned Southern California PGA Junior Champion.

Kemp plays cool under pressure like a true champion and remains the guy to beat. In last year's final round he was tied for the lead with the Philippines' Ramon Brobio at the 14th.

Kemp 3-putted and Brobio went up by a shot. Kemp sun a 16 foot birdie putt on the 15th while Brobio 3 putted. Kemp bogeyed the 17th and they went to the 499 yard, par 5, 18th tied.

Brobio hit a 230 yard, 3-wood to 40 feet on his second shot. Kemp laid up short on his 2nd shot, then stroked a sand wedge to 3 feet. Brobio missed his birdie try from 7 feet, and Kemp won the match and the title with a 3-foot putt going in dead center.

Considering the quality of the players, there is no reason to expect less adventurous competition in tomorrow's final round.

And it doesn't end there. Most of the 15-17 boys head out to Singing Hills next week for the USGA's 42nd U.S. Junior Amateur Golf Championships. San Diego is really world class golf country.

Joe Freed on the movies

When Harry Met Sally. . .

Harry (Billy Crystal) might be described as a egotistical, chauvinistic, obnoxious, rude, disgusting pig. Sally (Meg Ryan) has an equally impressive list with the traits of a compulsive, nit-picking, holier-than-thou, naive pest. And for some strange reason, they are both endearing, almost loveable. I guess Harry and Sally are just human.

Director Rob Reiner's new film surrounds the relationships and processes by which modern relationships mature, which in itself isn't exactly an original idea. but "When Harry Met Sally..." easily manages to maintain a fresh approach with its honesty, primarily in the dialogue of the very blunt Harry. "Men and women can never be friends," he tells Sally, "because no matter what you think the man will always want to go to bed with you." The audience laughs, almost out of shock, but deep in the back of their minds, a voice keeps asking, "Isn't that just a little bit true?"

This kind of stark, hilarious realism is manifested further in the character of Sally's best friend, Marie, played by Carrie Fisher. So intent is she on winning the dating game, that she actually keeps a rolodex file on all eligible bachelors, bending the edge of a subject's card if he gets married.

The movie, which takes place in New York, is also filmed with originality and the dialogue and pacing are perfect. Reiner's style reminds me a lot of Woody Allen's, especially in a scene in which two telephone conversations take place simultaneously, relaying the same story, while overlapping and expanding on each other for the audience. Reiner is more contemporary however, approaching each scene with a sharper edge and faster pace. He treats satire in such a manner that doesn't make any situation unbelievable. That ability should make Reiner's films more bankable than Allen's.

"When Harry Met Sally..." is completely satisfying, never boring, silly or trite, and in this summer of rehashes and sequels, it comes as a welcome, original relief. It is now playing in selected theatres but will swing into a wide release on July 26.

Special immunization clinics to be held

Two special immunization clinics will be held on Saturday, July 22, by County Public Health Services as part of a regional campaign to increase the immunization levels of infants, toddlers and their older brothers and sisters.

The clinics will be held at the following locations: El Cajon Health Center, 113 East Douglas Ave., El Cajon and North San Diego Health Center, 2440 Grand Ave., San Diego.

The clinics will be conducted from 9 a.m.–noon on the 22nd and are being staffed by County Public Health Services personnel. There will be no charge.

Immunizations being offered at the clinics are diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis (DTP); measles, mumps and rubella (MMR); polio; and hemophilus influenza, type B (HIB). Parents are asked to bring their child's immunization record.

"We are supporting this campaign," said Dr. Donald G. Ramras, county health officer, "because we feel any effort which will help save our children from the serious complications of such diseases as measles and pertussis is a worthy one."

"Shots for Tots," as the campaign is called, is designed to not only raise immunization levels but also to assist local health departments with the purchase of vaccine due to a shortfall of funding from the State.

Money for the vaccine will come from the Christermon Foundation, a volunteer coalition of Southern California grocers and manufacturers.

Two additional clinics will be held in October. Their times and locations will be announced at a later date.

Nancy De Maria named to Million Dollar Club at Bank of America

Nancy De Maria, financial services officer at Bank of America's Campo-Conrad Branch in Spring Valley, was one of nearly two dozen Bank of America officers in San Diego County to become members of the Million Dollar Club for generating more than $1 million in loans since the beginning of the year, according to David Berry, vice president and area manager of the North/East San Diego County Area Management Group.

At a recent sales rally, Berry presented each Million Dollar Club employee with a B of A gold and black pin signifying the milestone. Employees who reach the $2 million mark in loans will earn a pin bearing a diamond.

The pins represent booking of small business, auto, personal, home equity and real estate loans.

All recipients will be honored at a banquet this month.

Ms. De Maria is a resident of San Diego.
